The "Homeland-Mother"

The "Homeland-Mother" is a giant monument of a woman with a big sword in her hands she holds it above her head in one arm and second arm is pointed in the sky. The woman is wearing a long dress and her face looks angry and militant.

The monument is located in Russia in Volgograd on Mamaev Kurgan. This city has been attacked during World War II and Red army's soldiers were fighting for their city and their country. To get to this monument you will need to go upstairs almost two thousand ~~stairs~~ stairs.

I will recommend to visit this place because you can learn something new about our country during the World War II, about people who were helping our country and how our ancestors were living before, during and after those evil years. ~~For~~

For example my great-grandmother is a child of war and she ~~has~~ told me that her mom was hiding her in closets when bombing was happening.
